Have you ever wanted to know how to work with a recruiter, get the attention of an employer, make the best impression in an interview, handle the tough interview questions, or negotiate a compensation package? Here is a chance to get answers in an informal Q&A session with Pat Morrill, an executive recruiter in the financial field.

Speaker Profile

Pat Morrill is President of Morrill Associates, an executive search firm that she founded in 1983. The firm specializes in recruiting investment bankers for positions in corporate finance, mergers and acquisitions, leveraged finance, and private equity. Clients include large global and domestic investment banks, specialized boutique investment banks and asset managers. For more on the firm, see the web site at www.morrill.com.

A former financial professional herself, Pat was previously a private placement specialist with Prudential Insurance, an investment banker with First Boston (now Credit Suisse) and a lending officer with Citibank. She is a long-time member of the FWA.

Special thanks to the New York Institute of Finance for sponsoring this event.
